LAURA (CURTIS) GROSS, founder of the 1925 F Street Club, owner of the clubhouse and director of the club, is moving back to Washington in three or four weeks after years of residing in Bethlehem, Pa. She moved there 30 years ago when she married John Gross, but she has come to Washington at frequent intervals ever since to supervise the smooth running of the chic town club noted for its cuisine.

She and her husband have bought an apartment at Watergate East, where she may open a gift shop, having had one in the stables of her Bethlehem house.

Her old friends will be pleased to have this warm-hearted socialite back in town. Some of them remember the hospitality of her F Street house where they had such fun they pitched in to turn it into a club rather than let her sell it.
